What is news literacy?

News literacy is the ability to ...

- Determine what is credible and what is not.
- Use the standards of authoritative, fact-based journalism in deciding what to trust, what to share and what to act on.
- Interact with news and other information in ways that promote engaged participation in civic life.

Why news literacy matters

RUMORS

CONSPIRACY THEORIES

MISINFORMATION

News literacy skills apply to the content and the source of information – not the platform.

What will you find if you search for these claims?

Can you tell the difference between fact and fiction?

Essential news literacy skills

Slow down; recognize your emotional responses.

- Misinformation manipulates our emotions.
- Emotional response overrides rational thought.
- Adolescents and elderly are especially vulnerable.

Differentiate news
from opinion.

News vs. opinion

- News: Information that informs you, through fair and impartial reporting, about local, national and international events, issues and people of significance or of interest.
- Opinion: Information intended to share an opinion or perspective and, often, to try to persuade you to adopt or support a specific point of view about an issue or subject.

Recognizing opinion

- Look for key words: “opinion,” “commentary,” “editorial.”
- Look for first-person statements by the author (this does not include quotes from others).
- Look for persuasive language.

Note: The “tone” of the text may include exaggeration, sarcasm, irony and superlatives.

Context

Recognize types and forms of bias.

Do you perceive bias in this headline?

“USS Theodore Roosevelt
commander relieved of duty”

Is this more biased, less biased, or about the same?

“Navy removes aircraft carrier captain who raised alarm about coronavirus response”

Is this more biased, less biased or about the same?

“Commander of aircraft carrier hit by coronavirus removed for ‘poor judgment’ after sounding alarm”

Rank these from most to least biased:

1. "USS Theodore Roosevelt commander relieved of duty"
2. "Navy removes aircraft carrier captain who raised alarm about coronavirus response"
3. "Commander of aircraft carrier hit by coronavirus removed for 'poor judgment' after sounding alarm"

Questions of bias

- Are these all straight news pieces from standards-based news organizations?
- Are these accurate/factual headlines?
- Can we clearly explain which type of bias we perceive?
- Are we projecting our own biases?

Sources for these headlines (all straight news):

"USS Theodore Roosevelt commander relieved of duty"

"Navy removes aircraft carrier captain who raised alarm about coronavirus response"

"Commander of aircraft carrier hit by coronavirus removed for 'poor judgment' after sounding alarm"

Understanding Bias

TYPES

Corporate bias

A type of bias in which the business or advertising interests of a news outlet, or its parent company, influence how — or even whether — a story is reported.

“Big story” bias

A type of bias in which journalists' perceptions of an event or development as a major, important story can cause them to miss key details and misrepresent key facts.

Partisan bias

A type of bias in which a journalist's political views affect news coverage.

Demographic bias

A type of bias in which race, gender, ethnicity or other factors — such as culture or economic class — affect news coverage.

Neutrality bias

A type of bias in which a journalist or news outlet tries so hard to avoid appearing biased to anyone that the coverage actually misrepresents the facts.

FORMS

Absence of fairness and balance

The failure of a straight news report to present a fair and balanced representation of the event or issue. This is a form that various types of bias can take in news coverage.

Framing

The way that journalists approach and organize a story. Various types of news media bias can be expressed in how a story is framed.

Tone

In journalism, the use of words and phrases that affect the audience's perception of the issue or event being covered. This is one form that various types of bias can take in reporting.

Story selection

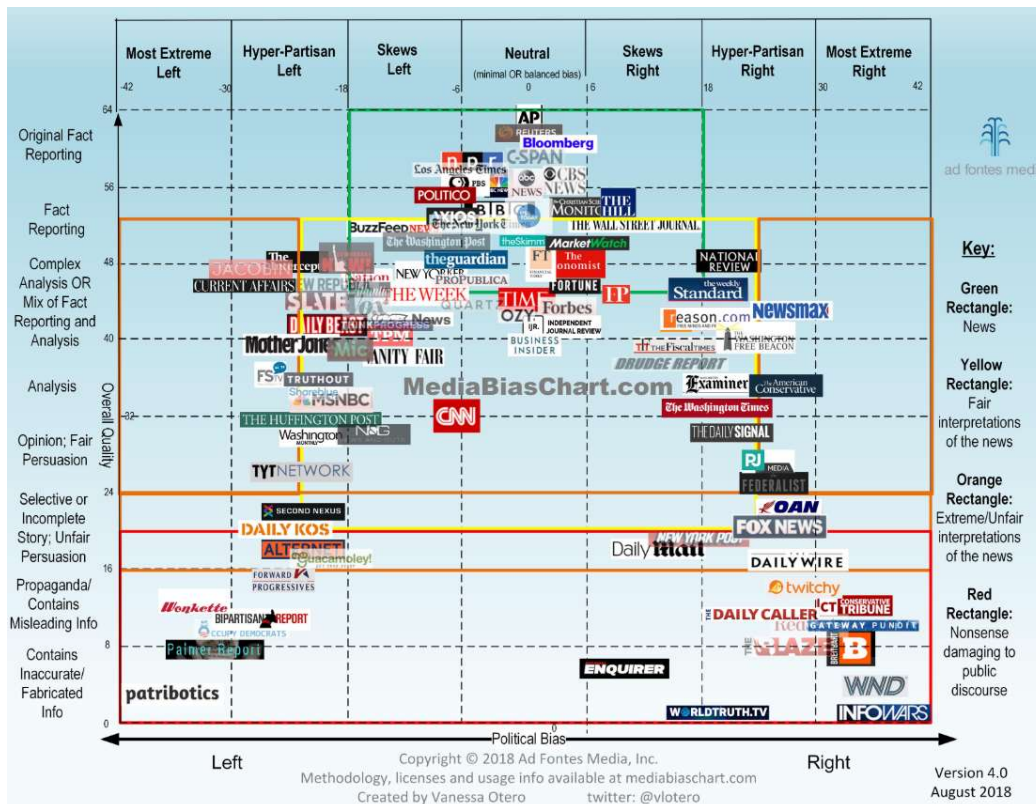

The process that news outlets use to decide which issues and events to cover. This is a form that various types of bias can take in news coverage.

Sourcing

All of the people, organizations, documents and other providers of information that are used to put together a news report. The use of incomplete or otherwise flawed sourcing is one potential form that various types of news media bias can take.

We might be tempted to rely on charts like these:

The News Literacy Project

Efficacy of these charts for determining bias in news

- These charts often reflect the orientation of opinion writers/commentators and the perceptions held by the general public.
- Some sources focus almost entirely on commentary, opinion or propaganda.
- These charts are highly subjective/debatable when it comes to straight news.
- They may even over-simplify a complex issue and discourage critical evaluation.

Stanford History
Education Group

- What/who is the source of the claim?
 - Is the source credible?
- What evidence is there to support the claim?
 - What is the source of the evidence?
 - Is that source credible?
- Is there a clear connection between the evidence and the claim?

Fact-check using lateral reading.

Reagan was on to something and some things never change.

Nancy Pelosi is extremely evil, she comes from the Baltimore democrat corruption machine the D'Alesandro family, both her father Tom D'Alesandro and her brother Tommy D'Alesandro were mayors of Baltimore, a well oiled corrupt democrat family.

Tips for effective lateral reading

- Use effective search strategies and tools.
- Exercise click restraint; review results carefully.
- Select sources that seem relevant and reliable.
- Evaluate the information and sources you find.
- Keep searching until you are confident.

Fact-check using
reverse image search.

Reverse image search

- Specialized search that matches pixel patterns.
- Matching and “similar” images in results.
- Three key tools: Google, TinEye, Yandex.
- Multiple ways to search.

NOTE: Results must be evaluated carefully just like with lateral reading.

Satire is a type of misinformation.

- Humor is an emotional response.
- Even well-labeled satire is often shared out of context or plagiarized.
- “I was just kidding” user-generated posts can go viral.
- Verification of content and source is the same as other forms of misinformation.

Questions for exploration

How do these apply to our social media feeds?

- Slow down; check emotions.
- Differentiate news from opinion.
- Understand types and forms of bias.
- Evaluate sources for evidence.
- Fact-check using lateral reading.
- Fact-check using reverse image search.
- Recognize satire.

Pelosi fake fuels ongoing debate

A screenshot of a side-by-side comparison by The Washington Post showing the differences between the authentic video of Nancy Pelosi's May 22 speech at a Center for American Progress event and a version whose speed and tone were manipulated to make it appear that she was slurring her words.

When a video of House Speaker Nancy Pelosi that had been doctored to make her speech sound slurred was posted to a partisan Facebook page on May 22, it quickly went viral. It also touched off a string of interrelated discussions — about the potential for fake videos to mislead voters in the 2020 presidential election; about the way social media platforms should respond to such videos; and about the role of news media in covering examples of political misinformation.

Some noted the irony in the fact that amid ongoing concern over sophisticated "deepfake" videos fueled by artificial intelligence, such a low-tech manipulation — a "cheap fake," "dumb fake" or "shallow fake" — would fool so many people and cause so much disruption. The incident also reinvigorated the debate over the responsibilities that social media companies may — or may not — have for the
